▲ CELTIC ASTROLOGY PENDANTS

Although the early Celts preserved their traditions orally, they also developed a highly symbolic 25-letter written alphabet, based on trees, that was known as Ogham. These sterling silver pendants represent the Ogham symbol for each month; an accompanying card describes the attributes of people born under each Celtic sign. Please specify month. On an 18" chain.

▲ EXCLUSIVE! DRUIDIC THOUGHT RINGS

A Druidic triad holds: "Three candles that illumine every darkness: Truth, Nature and Knowledge." Each ring has one word written two ways: in English and in Irish Gaelic. The Gaelic word is spelled in Ogham, the early Celtic tree alphabet. Wear just one or all three, stacked or on separate fingers. Sterling silver; whole sizes 5-12.

The Alphabet Built On Trees

Nearly two millennia ago, Irish Celts created Ogham (pronounced "ohm"), a 25-character phonetic alphabet—symbols used to represent the smallest units of sound, just like the "ABCs"—and modeled the letters after trees. The letter Duir (corresponding to "D") means Oak and also signifies Door, both because the strongest doors were made of oak and because the oak was believed to be a doorway to the spiritual realm.

◀ FOREST SPIRIT CANDLEHOLDER

The venerable spirit of the ancient forest invites you to tend the candles and illuminate his benign visage. 9" tall, made of heavyweight bronzed resin. Holds standard tea-light candles (not included). Rush delivery is not available.

▲ WHEEL OF THE YEAR

The Celts did not measure the passing of time with a calendar. Their sense of the years was circular, marked at the quarters and cross-quarters by seasonal festivals. This beautifully detailed plaque by Maxine Miller depicts the cycles of nature in plant forms arrayed around spokes denoting the festivals. Wood-finish resin plaque has eight hangers on the back, so you can turn it as the year turns. 12" diameter.
